

Another Airline Crash; 21 Are Listed Killed

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — Twenty-one persons were killed and 13 were injured in the crash of a Northeast Airlines passenger plane at this island resort's airport Friday night.

Seven hours after the plane — carrying many holiday-bound people to one of New England's most popular playgrounds — crashed in foggy weather and burned, only 12 of the dead were identified. Among those was Gordon Dean of New York, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Thirty-three adults and a 2-year-old baby were aboard the airliner. The infant — Cindy Lou Young, being held in her mother's lap — was thrown clear and survived the tragedy. Her mother, Mrs. Jacqueline Young, about 10, of Nantucket, was killed.

Most of the passengers were flying here to start a New England holiday.

Hours after the plane crashed 300 yards northeast of the airport and burst into flames; doctors and airlines officials had identified only eight of the dead.

The crash was the second major air tragedy in two days. A Dutch KLM Super Constellation crashed off Shannon, Ireland, Thursday, with the loss of 99 lives.

The Northeast plane crashed as it was approaching its destination. It was a 40-passenger Convair with 30 passengers and a crew of 3. A Civil Aeronautics Administration spokesman said it "disintegrated and caught fire."

Most of the passengers apparently were en route to vacations or weekend stays on this popular island resort about 15 miles off Cape Cod.

The dead included John Burnham, 36, of Marshfield, Mass., the pilot, and David Carey, 23, of Nantucket, the co-pilot. The third member of the crew, Stewardess Ellen Dabek, 23, of Manchester, N.H., was listed as injured.

Also listed as dead were Harvey Schwamm, prominent New York City banker. His wife, Lillian, was seriously injured.

No Unusual Sight About Moon Takeoff

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The rockets roar, your seat trembles and—whooosh—you're off to the moon.

If you could be aboard the moon missile expected to blast off from Cape Canaveral Sunday you'd see and hear about the same things 20,000 Griffith Park Planetarium visitors experience every month.

Assuming, of course, that the moon is anything like scientists believe it to be.

It's an amazingly realistic production, this mock-up moon trip, completed with sound and color. So let's take the 60-cent grand tour.

You and 200 others are seated in a big domed room. The lights dim and you lean back against a nearest. "Lighting effects transfer the dome into the nose of a space ship pointed toward the moon, some 226,000 miles away."

Dr. C. H. Clemmshaw, planetarium director, begins a running commentary. As he talks the moon comes nearer and nearer. The planetarium round trip takes 45 minutes. Sunday's lunar probe mission will take almost three days one way, if it goes there.

"The scientists know that a great deal of luck will be involved if the first attempt is a success," says Dr. Clemmshaw. "There is just one of the reasons."

A huge meteorite looms up in front of the space ship, then spins off to one side in the nick of time and the space ship continues, eventually landing on the moon.

As you step out of the space ship, the dome lights change and you see a scene of transcendent beauty. Sharp craters, unwatered by atmosphere and water, slash thousands of feet upward. Craters as big as the Grand Canyon break the monotony of the lunar plains.

The sun, unfiltered by earthly haze, is rising in all its naked fury. On the far horizon the earth comes into view, its continents and vast oceans barely visible through rainbow-hued clouds.

It's awesome.

Anderson Does Not Rule Out Tax Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury, Anderson said today he would not rule out a tax increase as a possible method of cutting down huge budget deficits and checking inflation.

But, under sharp questioning by Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) of the Senate Finance Committee, Anderson said the Treasury is not now prepared to come forward with any tax recommendations.

The secretary appeared before the committee to ask approval of a House-passed bill raising the federal debt limit to 266 billion dollars.

Before he got into the exchange with Byrd on a possible tax increase, Anderson testified the government may go so deeply into the financial hole that the debt limit may have to be boosted even higher than that.

The committee is considering a bill to raise the permanent debt ceiling from 275 billion dollars to 295 and add an extra 3 billion for a temporary limit of 288 billion.

Under legislation effective until next June 30, the temporary limit is now 280 billion.

ALC to Take Cigarette Tax Issue

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative Council meets today to consider a heavy agenda of proposals, including a suggestion for a study on the feasibility of making state cigarette taxes deductible on federal income tax returns.

Other proposals to be taken up by the council—an out-of-session arm of the Legislature—include:

1. The question of whether Arkansas should adopt more of the regulations contained in the Uniform Motor Vehicle Code.

2. Whether additional money will be required to buy land for Pea Ridge National Park.

3. Whether the council should meet with officials of Little Rock, North Little Rock and Pulaski County to work out a system of payments for residents who get treatment at the University Medical Center here.

State Rep. Chad L. Durrett of Union County proposed the cigarette tax study. He said that by amending the state's cigarette tax law, consumers could knock the tax off their taxable income.

As it stands now, Arkansas residents can deduct the 8-cent a pack cigarette tax because it is classified as an indirect levy.

The study about payments at the Medical Center was proposed by state Sens. Tom Allen of Brinkley, Jack S. Shelton of Monticello and state Rep. John F. Bennett of Prairie County yesterday.

They urged in a resolution that

Indonesia Republic Is 13 Years Old

By ROBERT MONAHAN United Press International

JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesia marks its 13th birthday as an independent Republic Sunday and moves into a new period which its leaders hope will bring peace and prosperity to Southeast Asia's biggest nation.

On August 17, 1945, two dedicated nationalists stood at attention outside a private home in Jakarta and watched while the Republic's red and white flag was hoisted ceremoniously for the first time.

The two men were Sukarno, a Dutch-educated civil engineer, and Mohammad Hatta, a scholar and economist.

Sukarno (like many Indonesians, he has only one name) has served as the republic's president for the entire 13 troubled years of independence.

Hatta resigned from the vice-presidency in December, 1950 and has since declined repeatedly to rejoin the government. He remains, however, with Sukarno, a principal hero of the independence movement.

Successfully Quell Rebellion The last year, without question, has been the most crucial and trying period the young nation has experienced.

A campaign to wrest control of western New Guinea from the Dutch focused, sometimes painfully, the spotlight of world attention on Indonesia and brought a fresh wave of economic problems as well.

The campaign against the Dutch was followed by a rebellion in the outer islands which had chafed for years over grievances with the central government.

The untamed Indonesian armed forces succeeded brilliantly in militarily crushing the rebellion. But the main offensives and the mop-up operations that continues in the jungles of Sumatra and the Celebes have put a further strain on the economy.

The Republic's leaders acknowledge that the country is faced with problems that would tax severely even the most stable of nations.

But they are confident these problems can be overcome with the same spirit and determination that gained the island nation of 82 million persons its independence from the Netherlands.

Teamsters VP Suspended By General Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — The general council for the Teamsters indicated today the giant union will comply with an order by court-appointed monitors to suspend Teamster Vice President, Owen (Bert) Brennan from office.

Atty. Edward Bennett Williams said he wanted to study the order and discuss it with Teamsters President James R. Hoffa before commenting fully.

But he told a reporter the union has complied with other orders of the three-man board of monitors and "this would be a departure if we did not."

The monitors, by a 2-1 vote Friday, set Aug. 25 as the deadline for the Teamsters to charge Brennan with misappropriation of union funds—a charge aimed at his expulsion from the scandal-plagued union.

At the same time, the monitors asked that Hoffa be disqualified from taking part in the proceedings against Brennan — an old friend and close associate of the Teamster chief.

The monitors were appointed by a federal court to overcome Teamster affairs after dissident Teamster groups challenged Hoffa's election to the presidency.

The demand of the monitors same as the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee completed its second week of a new look at Hoffa and his union amid these developments:

Rep. Wint Smith (R-Kan.) denied bowing to political pressure to end an abortive House investigation of Hoffa in 1953. He asked to tell his story before the rackets committee and Chairman John L. McClellan said he probably would get his chance about next Tuesday.

Smith said the probe ended for one simple reason—there weren't any more witnesses.

2. Committee members hinted that Allen Dorfman, Chicago jih. insurance man who wrote policies for Teamster locals might be indicted for contempt of Congress. Dorfman fired off an angry statement against the committee yesterday.

then, invoked the Fifth Amendment on several occasions when he testified.

3. Gus Zapas, an Indianapolis Teamsters official, was asked if he had ever discussed going rid of some kidnap money. The witness, an ex-convict, said he hadn't. Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy wouldn't say whether the question related to the committee's effort to obtain leads on some $300,000 still missing from the $600,000 ransom paid in the kidnapping of 6-year-old Robert Greenleaf Jr. in 1953. The boy was found dead.

Jordan Is Searched for Weapons

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Police and soldiers searched the two largest Palestinian refugee camps in Amman today looking for arms in these tinderboxes of opposition to King Hussein's government.

A top Jordanian army officer said 140 persons were taken into custody for questioning. About five of them had Communist leaflets, he reported. Police sources said blasting powder and ammunition were found in one camp.

The searches were carried out under a curfew imposed on the two camps before dawn. By noon the police and soldiers had completed their raids and the curfew was lifted.

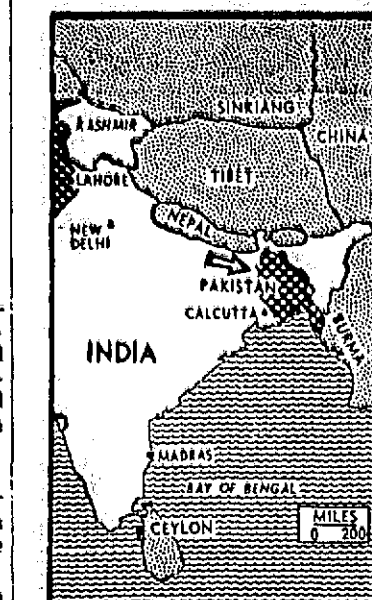

The two camps contain about 50,000 refugees out of 250,000 persons in Amman. The other 25 U.N. relief agency camps in Jordan, housing about 450,000 refugees, were not affected.

A top Jordanian source denied an Israeli radio report that about a dozen top Jordanian officers were arrested Thursday in the Nabulus area of Jordan-held Palestine for plotting a coup. A number of officers were arrested last month for plotting against Hussein.

The clampdown opened the Moslem sabbath, a day of possible trouble because it brings emotions easily inflamed crowds into the streets. Another 500 to 800 security troops were added Thursday night to the already heavy military guard in Amman.

Rumors reported through the Jordanian capital. One said that anti-Jewish riots might occur today. Another said an attempted coup was frustrated Thursday.

The rumors have been in the air since the war state of Israel was found 11 years ago. Most of the half-million refugees in Jordan live on U.N. relief. They have been told to follow the brand of violently anti-Semitic Arab nationalism preached by President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, who has issued veiled calls for Hussein's assassination.

Star Newsboys Get Trip to Yellowstone

Five Hope Star carrier boys, winners in a city circulation contest, will leave Sunday with A. H. Washburn, publisher, and C. M. (Pod) Rogers, Jr., circulation manager, on a station-wagon tour of Yellowstone National Park and Colorado, totaling between 4,000 and 5,000 miles.

The boys are: Edward O'Steen, Danny Hatfield, Jimmy McGuire, Leon Prince, and John Whitten. They expect to camp out, but will eat in restaurants. On the outbound trip they will head for Rapid City, S.D., viewing the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial in the Black Hills, going from there into Yellowstone park.

On the return trip they will drive to Denver and tour Colorado, including visits to Pike's Peak and the Navajo cliff-dwellings in Mesa Verde National Park, and coming home by way of New Mexico and Texas. They expect to be home by Saturday, August 30.

Mr. Washburn will photograph the trip, and will send daily reports back to the paper on what the boys see along the way.

The contests this spring and summer have carried The Stars city circulation to the highest point in history. Last June Circulation Manager Rogers and the publisher took seven boys on tour to the Missouri state line, and other educational outings will be offered as time permits.

Johnson Hurls Steal Charge in Vote Count

By CLIFTON WELLS LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Certification of the vote in Tuesday's Democratic primary began today with Jim Johnson charging that an attempt was being made to steal his apparent Supreme Court victory.

On the basis of unofficial returns the 33-year-old firebrand segregationist from Crossett defeated Justice Minor Mill week's bid for renomination by approximately 3,500 votes.

With only 12 precincts of the state's 2,313 unreported, Johnson had 143,221 votes and Millweek, 37-year-old native of De Queen, a total of 130,778.

Both Johnson and Millweek victory yesterday with the latter apparently basing his hopes on supposedly mathematical errors at the county level which might be uncovered in the process of certification.

The county Democratic committees met today to reach official totals and certify them to state Secretary Frank E. Robins Jr. of Conway. Under party rules, the certifications are supposed to be in Robins' hands by Monday.

For East Described as Powder Keg

TAIPEI (AP) — America's top commander in Formosa today described the situation in the Formosa Strait area as a powder keg one in which "anything could and might happen."

But Vice Adm. Roland N. Smoot told newsmen he doesn't think there will be an attack on Formosa. He said the Reds do attack the Formosa Strait area as a powder keg one in which "anything could and might happen."

Smoot compared the increased activity of Communist jets over the Formosa Strait in the past days with probing by infantry. He said if this is followed by bombing and strafing of the Nationalist offshore islands, coupled with troop movements and concentrations of invasion ships and bombers, then the situation will be quite serious.

1891 'Household' Gem Gives Etiquette of Polite Society

By MARY ANITA LASETER "A few words as to the value of good manners may not be out of place, since it is too often the habit of those who have most need of them to undervalue their importance."

At first glance, the above quotation may appear to be an excerpt from a recent book on etiquette, but the fact is, it was found in an 1891 copy of The Household Gem Cyclopedia loaned to me by Mrs. Emmett Thompson.

Apparently, even when the book was published in 1891, it was felt that there was need for discussion and practice of the rules and habits of polite society. Today, there are numerous articles and books written about "etiquette," so the need must still be present.

Why does it seem so hard in so many instances for us to practice good manners? Maybe it is because of poor training as children or too few demands on us as adults. Or, because in our minds we often make gracious manners a complicated procedure.

The best thing to remember is that being polite is simply being thoughtful of others.

It is to your personal advantage as well as to the advantage of others to be courteous. A shining example of this is found in Japan, where department stores are now conducting a politeness campaign because the owners know it affects sales.

One personnel manager is said to have told a group of recruits: "We'll have to first make judges and gentlemen out of you before you are of any use."

Getting back to the old book, much space was given to a discussion of the art of conversation. "The matter of conversation is as important as the manner," the reader was told. There followed a very long list of subjects to avoid as topics for conversation. These included practically everything, and when the reader had begun to wonder just what was left to talk about, this sentence caught the eye: "A good listener is more to be desired than a good conversationalist."

Table manners, of course, play a big part in any over-all discussion of etiquette. The Cyclopedia said: "There is no position where the innate refinement of a person is more fully exhibited, than at the table and nowhere that those who have not been trained in table etiquette feel more keenly their deficiencies."

Many of us slow-pokes are grateful to see this statement relating to table manners. Haste, whether from greediness or a desire to get away, is equally objectionable.

Even this compendium of etiquette, with its vast array of pointers governing marriage and reception ceremonies, recognized that "to lay down a set of rules for the regulation of courtship would prove as hopeless a task as Mrs. Partington's attempt to mop up the Atlantic ocean."

In conclusion, the article on etiquette stated: "A man's best and only right motive in the cultivation of good manners should be to make himself better than he is, to render himself agreeable to everyone with whom he has to do, and to improve, if necessary, the society in which he is placed."

With these objects in view, it is plainly as much a moral duty to cultivate one's manners as one's mind, and no one can deny that a man is a better citizen for being a gentleman in the sense that true courtesy makes the gentleman."

Heydrich was killed by Czechoslovak resistance fighters in 1942. Mrs. Heydrich contended that her husband's death was "connected with the war events," the standard requirement for payment of the pension.

The maximum pension is 105 marks ($39.27) a month. Court officials refuse to disclose the amount to be paid to the widow.

Red Inspired Racial Unrest Probe Started

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A probe to determine whether Communists have incited racial unrest in this state has been authorized by the Arkansas Legislative Council.

The council yesterday gave a green light to its Special Education Committee and Atty. Gen. Bruce Gennett to hold public hearings on the matter.

Bennett can use his subpoena power to summon witnesses, documents and material considered pertinent to the investigation.

Committee findings will be reported to the council.

Bennett said no date had been fixed for the hearings but that they probably would be held sometime this fall.

The hearings were requested in a resolution submitted to the council by state Rep. Paul Van Dalsam of Perry County, the committee chairman. The resolution got unanimous council approval in an executive session held after a regular meeting.

Van Dalsam said in the resolution that the people of Arkansas had lived harmoniously together for 150 years. But at present, the resolution said, there are signs that individuals or organizations may be "creating and fomenting strife and racial unrest."

Asked if the hearings were aimed at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Bennett replied: "They're aimed at the Communist Party."

A longtime foe of the NAACP, Bennett has said on several occasions that NAACP officials have received "Communist front citations."

Bennett said in a statement: "It is significant to me that the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund has stated under oath that it received only $186.41 from donors in Arkansas last year."

"However, the president of the Arkansas NAACP (Mrs. L. C. Bales of Little Rock) who recently stated that they had spent some $10,000 in our state in the last year. This money came from the New York NAACP. The Legislative Council wants to know why with all the racial trouble in the East and in the North, those same people are interested in creating trouble among people in Arkansas."

Bennett said he would start next week on drawing up a list of persons who would be subpoenaed to testify at the hearings. He said the list would include persons who are former members of the Communist Party.

Eddie Stanley

Marriage Vows

The Eldredge Formby home was the scene of the wedding of Miss Norma Jean Stanley and Donald Ray Eddy, Thursday, August 14, at six o'clock in the evening. The parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stanley of Patmos and Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Eddy of Stamps.

In the presence of the immediate families and close friends, the Reverend Glenn Parks of Lewisville performed the impressive double ring ceremony before an arch of cathedral spires flanked by baskets of white gladioli and greenery. The bride given in marriage by her father was attired in a frock of powder blue flocked nylon sheer finished with a sweetheart neckline and bouffant waist-length skirt over tulle. Her tiered veil of illusion was attached to a crest shaped comb of blue daisies. She carried a colonial bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Glenn Hamilton of Stamps, mother of honor, wore a dress of blue lace and carried a crescent bouquet of pink feathered carnations. Glenn Hamilton served the groom as best man. The candles were lighted by Buddy Ball of Hope and Donnie Stanley of Patmos, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Stanley, mother of the bride, wore a dress of penstock blue silk with a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Eddy, the groom's mother, wore a navy silk. Her corsage was also of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the lovely Formby home. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth centered with an arrangement of white stock and candles. The tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Mary Hamm of Hope and the punch by Mrs. A. L. Cleary of Texarkana.

Miss Brenda Hamm of Hope had charge of the bride's book. After a wedding trip along the Gulf Coast Mr. and Mrs. Eddy will be at home at 1002 South Elm Street in Hope. For travel Mrs. Eddy wore an empire cotton knit of green and blue with a green velvet hat and navy accessories and pinned the orchid from her bouquet at her shoulder.

Motion Picture of Looking cool and lovely morning and night is a cinch this summer. The new sleepwear shown here is both pretty and practical, is truly practical because it is truly drip-dry. These designs are all done in a soft blend of dacron, nylon and cotton. Gown with harem-draped skirt (left) could almost double as a short evening gown. We show it in pale rose. It has draped bodice, Y neckline and bows at both neck and hem. The romantic-looking full-length peignoir (center) is nevertheless cool and airy. Collar, cuffs and front closing are edged in a froth of lace and short sleeves are ribbon-tied at wrist. Influence of ready-to-wear appears again in short gown (right) with trapeze cut. Waistline and skirt are banded with delicate floral embroidery.

IT'S THE GYPSY IN HER—Former strip-tease queen Gypsy Rose Lee found the 90-degree weather in Atlanta, Ga., just too hot for much activity. So someone (a press agent, maybe?) gave her a fishing rod and she stretched out on a grassy bank under a shade tree to present this charmingly curvaceous angling. Now a "legitimate" actress, Gypsy is starring in "Happy Hunting"—but it was hot for hunting.

DOROTHY DIX

Old Clothes Soothe
a Well-Dressed Man

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I have been happily married for two years to a man who is perfect in every respect—except one: of course, or why would I be writing to you? He is a salesman and must dress to the hilt on working days. On weekends he does a complete about-face. He wears old slacks with an old shirt, and he simply will not let me throw them out. I have no objection to sports clothes, naturally, but would like to get him some dressy ones. I've heard that a wife must sometimes nag a husband for his own good. Isn't a situation like this one of those times? —Joyce V.

Dear Joyce: It most certainly is not nagging. It is only a justified when it concerns something vital, like health. You might nag your husband into seeing a doctor if he doesn't feel well, but don't nag about the clothes he wears around the house. This is a day of casual dress. If hubby's idea of comfort seems a little too casual for your taste, let him be! He's clean and shaved. What more do you want? A man who works in high gear all week needs a weekend for relaxation. If he takes his relaxation in well-worn-but well-loved clothes, he's earned that privilege.

Keeping a husband comfortable is a wife's first line of defense against the other woman. Nagging, incidentally, is the propeller that will send him flying to any one with a soothing voice. Block that nag, girl, and keep the old slacks patched.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I don't agree with you when you say that widows with children stand little chance of remarriage. When my husband died I was left with three children. A year later I married a wonderful man who has been a marvelous father to the kids. We've been married five years so I guess I ought to know. —M. M.

Dear M. M.: I'm very happy for your fortunate experience. But it really is rare. Most men aren't keen on taking on so big a responsibility. Be very grateful that you were one of the lucky few to catch an exception.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a very attractive mother of 35, who is frequently mistaken for my sister. She dresses her age, but don't you think she should dress to look about 40? —Amy

Dear Amy: Horrors to Betty! I've suggested that a young woman of 35 make herself look 40.

I'd deserve to be shot at sunrise! Be proud of your youthful-looking mother, Amy, and don't try to change her. We all grow old—soon enough.

U. S. Responds to Mid-East Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP)—This country has responded warmly to President Eisenhower's proposals in the United Nations for Middle East peace. But getting action on them by other countries—in or out of the U. N.—is something else.

"This suggestion captured most attention—that an effort be made to see whether the Arab countries would agree to setting up a development organization to help their industry, farming, water supply, health and education."

Eisenhower did not say this should be part of a U. N. program. He suggested the money could be put up by the United States, other countries which wanted to take part, and private capital. The development organization would be run by the Arabs.

It's easy to see trouble ahead on this one.

President Nasser of the United Arab Republic who seems bent on bringing all his Arab neighbors under this thumb, can do it easier if they're wracked with discontent than if they see a bright future ahead.

He can still on this one in the belief that time is on his side, and given time he can capture his neighbors. Then he might talk about a development organization with him as boss.

It's doubtful the Soviet Union would want in on this. Soviet infiltration in the Middle East is easier if the individual countries try to improve their lot with Soviet help in manpower, materials and loans.

Further Eisenhower limited his proposal to the Arab countries. This left Israel out, an omission which must have been deliberate. Eisenhower knows he'd almost certainly not get Arab approval for a development program including Israel.

Yet, somehow in any Middle East development plan Israel would have to be considered. For example, in any development of the Jordan River. Perhaps Eisenhower has something in mind for Israel by itself. If the Arabs buy his development idea.

Eisenhower also proposed steps against indirect aggression—specifically broadcasts beamed from one country into a neighbor's territory. This is a development program including Israel.

The President didn't mention Nasser on this one. No doubt he had Nasser in mind. The idea almost certainly will run into opposition not only from Egypt but from the Soviet Union.

In any discussion of a curb on broadcasts into another country, whether or not their purpose is subversion—the Soviets would probably insist that American broadcasts behind the Iron Curtain be stopped or monitored.

Another Eisenhower suggestion: that the U. N. take action looking towards the creation of a standby U. N. police to keep peace in the Middle East. Nasser, highly successful so far with his pressure tactics, will hardly buy this one. And even Jordan's King Hussein is cool to any idea of a police force on any Arab borders with Israel.

This Eisenhower proposal seems destined to get the coldest shoulder from both Nasser and the Soviet Union. That the U. N. is involved in the 1948 hostilities (the Arab-Israeli war) might approve creation of a U. N. study to see what could be done about controlling the shipment of heavy armaments into the area.

He didn't say anything about extending arms shipment control to the Baghdad Pact countries (Turkey, Iran, Pakistan)—which this country in effect joined as a full partner a couple of weeks ago for defense against the Soviet Union.

Nasser has been bitter against this military alliance right on the Arab doorstep in the Middle East and the Soviet Union has been bitter about it because it stretches along her southern frontier. Both the Soviet Union and Nasser almost certainly would fight any such Eisenhower proposal as this arms control plan unless it included at least Iran and Pakistan. Turkey could get arms any way from this country because it's also a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

council members met with officials of the three governmental units to consider a payment plan similar to a Memphis program of prepaid hospital insurance for indigent patients.

Under this program, launched at Memphis' John Gaston hospital last year, partially indigent patients must carry some type of hospitalization insurance or otherwise pay for full hospital care.

The three legislators' resolution stemmed from a report by the council's Public Health and Welfare Committee which has been studying the Memphis plan.

Goal of the committee study was a possible solution to a reduction in the amount of state appropriations for Medical Center operations.

The controversial Patient Quota Act of 1957 required larger cities and counties to pay for treating their residents at the center in excess of allotted patient-days.

Recently, he act was ruled unconstitutional by the Arkansas Supreme Court.

State Rep. Clayton N. Little of Benton County proposed the Pea Ridge study. He asked the Legislative Council to determine how much money would be needed to buy enough land to making Pea Ridge National Military Park into a national park.

Little estimated it would take about $200,000 in additional funds to obtain the required land. He proposed the study so the council could submit recommendations to the 1959 Legislature for an appropriation.

The 1957 Legislature allotted $250,000 to buy land for making Pea Ridge—a Civil War battlefield—into a national park. Earlier, Congress and President Eisenhower had approved the plan.

speaks of the "period of survival" any young nation must go through. The next step, he says, is creation of "a just and prosperous society."

Economic troubles aside, Indonesia takes pride in gains made since independence in the fields of health, education and foreign affairs.

Medical workers, assisted by international organizations, are waging a continuous battle against diseases like malaria and yaws. The results have been encouraging.

The nation can boast that now well more than half its population is literate, while under Dutch rule only a bare handful of Indonesians could read or write in the Latin alphabet.

Indonesia is highly conscious of its place in the Afro-Asian family of nations. In 1955 Indonesia sponsored a historic, unprecedented conference at Bandung, West Java, where leaders of these nations assembled to talk about common problems and aspirations.

The republic since its inception has heaved to what its leaders call an "active, independent policy" steering clear of a fallignment with any major power bloc.

The leaders say this policy met its crucial test during the last year when Indonesia was thrust into the world spotlight and subjected to pressures from all sides.

senhower had okayed the plan.

A snag developed when the National Park Service decided 4,416 acres would be required instead of 8,200 acres as specified originally. Little said Arkansas had to put up more money if Pea Ridge became a national park.

The council will take up the matter of greater state participation in the Uniform Motor Vehicle Code. Last week the committee recommended to the council that 30 Uniform Code regulations be adopted by the state.

Can Science Keep a Date With Moon?

By JOHN A. BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Science has made a date with that mysterious lady, the moon. But will it be able to keep it?

As early as next Sunday, scientific moonshots will be on their way. The first moonbound rocket. But they will consider themselves lucky indeed if they bring off a rendezvous.

Here are some of the problems they must solve:

The moon is at least 238,000 miles out in space. But scientists must aim at any empty point, 137,000 miles ahead of the moon's course, and hope that both moon and rocket arrive at about the same time. That would be about 2 1/2 days after firing.

Granted perfect aim—and you can imagine what a small error could do in 200,000-plus miles—the three-stage rocket still must fire perfectly. This means boosting its speed to about 25,000 miles an hour needed to escape the earth's gravity.

Given this initial speed, the rocket will gradually slow under gravity's pull until nearing the moon. It will be traveling only about 3,000 miles an hour. In fact, its average speed for the trip may be only about 5,000 miles an hour.

The speed is important. If the rocket slows too quickly, it will fall short of its objective. If it doesn't slow enough, it can zoom past and on into space.

While there are many ways for the moon rocket to fail or merely flirt with success, there is only one way to completely succeed.

What the scientists say they would really like to do is send up a rocket that would orbit around the moon a few times and then plunge back toward earth, and probable destruction.

The rocket, in its few turns around the moon, would take a series of close-up pictures—including never-before-seen shots of the moon's hidden side—and relay those back to earth.

It would also measure the magnetic field of the moon, measure temperatures and count meteors.

How many of its scientific tasks it completed would in a sense measure the rocket's success.

To give their rocket the best chance of finding the neighborhood of the moon and staying there a while, the scientists have carefully picked the course and timing of the launch.

They hope to save a few thousand miles by waiting until the moon comes closest to earth.

The Air Force shot, it is expected, will catch the moon in a good photographic pose. It will be moving from a new moon to a first quarter phase.

This means that the sun will be lighting up part of the backside of the moon—the side always turned away from earth.

West Scores 54-44 Victory Over East Squad

By JOHN R. STAHR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The West had the last shot and the hostile last night and hammered out a 54-44 victory over the East in the high school All-Star basketball game at Barton Coliseum.

About 5,000 cheering fans watched the lanky lads from the sun-down side of the state overcome an early deficit to grab a second straight all-star game decision. The East won the 1956 series opener.

East meets West again tonight on the gridiron at War Memorial Stadium and the Cowboy footballers are expected to complete another all-star sweep. The West has won both previous football games.

Height was the big difference in last night's game and the tallest last on the court—Texarkana's 6-8 Albin Morrison—led the triumph. He was the West's top scorer with 17 points and teamed with Bill Terwilliger of Fort Smith and James Davis of Caddo Gap to shut out the East rebounders all night long.

When the East finally came to life—after giving up a 21-point lead midway in the third quarter—it was a comparatively short fellow who brought about the renaissance.

Clyde Taylor of Marianna—only 5-10 in his gym shoes—had played sparingly for the first 20 minutes. In the last 14 minutes, he scored 19 points and was principally responsible for the respectable final score.

Taylor drove around and under the West's big boys for layups, he dropped in jump shots from 20 feet out and he stole the ball and dribbled away for crisp shots.

The fine show and his 20-point total earned him a trophy—voted by college coaches watching the contest—as the game's most valuable player.

Probably the West's most valuable player was Terwilliger, who pulled his team together as it broke an early 4-1 East lead. Terwilliger scored 9 points, all of them before the issue was decided.

Gary Carlton, the hot shot from Sheridan, made 13 West points but most of his came after play loosened up in the later stages. The East was scared of Carlton, who set all kinds of scoring records last season, and he was wounded in the first half. Even in the second half he never got a decent shot, but after he got going he made several which weren't easy.

They hope to save a few thousand miles by waiting until the moon comes closest to earth.

The Air Force shot, it is expected, will catch the moon in a good photographic pose. It will be moving from a new moon to a first quarter phase.

This means that the sun will be lighting up part of the backside of the moon—the side always turned away from earth.

TIME DIFFERENCE

THE STORY: The friendly hospitable neighborhood has been turned asunder by the murder of 13-year-old Bruce Adams. Fear has made it impossible for the people who live there to be civil to each other.

CHAPTER XVIII
Boh sat down with his sandwich, and in spite of hurt feelings ate with relish. She didn't interrupt as he had plans to make. She intended to take Marsha apart, piece by piece, but she had to get rid of Bob somehow. It would never do for him to think that she was out fighting his battles for him. He considered himself the man of the house and took his position very seriously.

"Have you anything planned, between now and dinner time?"
"No, Why?"
"Well, that prescription the doctor gave me is getting long. I wondered if you'd mind running downtown and getting it refilled for me?"
"Sure, I'll go. You'll have to give me some bus fare, though. I'm broke."

She refrained from pointing out that he was always broke, and went to her purse. She took a $5 bill from the billfold and handed it to him.

"If there's something you want to see, you might as well stay down for a movie and get your- self something to eat. I didn't go shopping today, and there isn't an awful lot in the house to eat."

His face brightened with enthusiasm. "Gee, I think that space picture started today. You remember, we saw the coming attractions of it the other night."

"Thank heaven for the flexibility of youth, she thought, but unfortunately she couldn't change moods that easily.

"As soon as he was gone there were a few well-chosen remarks she meant to deliver to the lady across the street. Adams, she could overlook, but not Marsha. You'd better wear a jacket. It gets cold in the evening."

"Okay," he agreed, and got a sports coat from the closet.

He deposited a kiss in the general direction of her cheek, and went out. She followed him to the door and called the usual motherly farewell. "Don't be too late."

As soon as he was out of sight, Edna grabbed a sweater and thrust her arms vigorously into the sleeves. The sound of the door slamming behind her, as she went out, was a good measure of the state of mind she was in. She was as angry as she had ever been in her life, and she was looking forward with pleasure to doing something about it.

She had always considered Marsha Taylor to be a milk-sop, a mama's girl, but she hadn't as yet disliked her for it before. After all, one didn't expect perfection in friends any more than one expected it in one's self, but to make Bob suffer for her stupidity was too much.

Edna noticed that Ken's car was in the driveway again. She watched up the walk until she saw when she reached the door, she tapped with her foot. She hadn't finished the second series when the door opened and she face Ken Taylor.

Hello, this he greeted her.

mother, not that it's any of your business, and just what's wrong with that?"

"First let me ask you a question, and then I'll tell you what's wrong with it. Just what did you mean by your treatment of Bob this afternoon? He's been coming over to mow your lawn for two years, and you've known him longer than that. I'd like to hear your reasons for yelling at him to go away or you'd call the police. You act as if he had turned into a leper overnight."

Ken stepped forward. "Just what are you talking about Edna?"

"Marsha knows quite well what I'm talking about, and I'd like to hear her explanation."

Marsha's face flushed with embarrassment. She hadn't meant to hurt Bob, and it had seemed such a little lie. After all, Ken hadn't been very agreeable to her going to her mother's, and it seemed a good idea to call and say that there had been a strange man at the door. After all, she hadn't actually seen Bob, so it wasn't exactly a lie.

"Well, when this knock came at the door, I got frightened. You know how nervous I've been, Ken, so I just called to whoever it was to go away. I had no way of knowing who it was. I just called out."

"You didn't know," Edna snorted. "I've been here lots of times when Bob came to mow the lawn. He always knocks, and yells his name so you won't have to bother coming to the door. I suppose he changed a habit of months today."

"If he called, I didn't hear him," Marsha said defensively.

"What about threatening to call the police?" Edna asked.

Training Balloon Falls, Builder Hurt

ASHLAND, Wis. (AP)—The crash of a training balloon gondola Wednesday night injured a bal- loon builder and an Air Force researcher who was preparing for a solo flight to test man's reaction to isolation in space. The test was postponed.

Capt. Grover Schock, 32, and Otto C. Vinzer, 40, suffered ex- tensive injuries when their open gondola plunged 100 or more feet to the earth after they cut loose from the balloon as it headed out over Lake Superior. They appar- ently released the ball-shaped gon- dola rather than be blown over the water in darkness. They smashed into a pasture half a mile inland when the gondola's parachute failed to open.

Their fall was witnessed by a police officer, a waiting ambu- lance crew and two men in a plane sent aloft to follow the bal- loon.

HUNGRY? For Good Old Fashioned HICKORY BAR-B-QUE SPARE RIB

REAL ROLE—Suzanne Vayda, 17, in a Toronto play, takes the role of a Hungarian refugee trying to adjust to life in Canada. It should be a cinch—she's a refugee from the 1956 Hungarian revolt.

Matter of FACT
Steam engines are of two types, piston and turbine. The first steam engine imagined was a turbine type. Here, a philosopher who lived in Alexandria, Egypt, about 2,000 years ago, made a turbine like a kettle with two spouts and no lid. He also devised a fountain in which water was pushed up by steam or hot air.

With their invention, steamships did not immediately replace sailing vessels. The rivalry between steam and sail lasted nearly 100 years. Sailing ships had one big advantage over steamers. A steam engine needs big boilers and, at first, a very bulky fuel—coal. Steamships could not make long passages without carrying so much fuel that there was little room for the carrying of freight.

SOURCE of POWER

It looks easy!

In no time at all this solid log is cut clean through. There's a reason. Because back of the saw is sufficient power to do the job... penetrating power. Oh, the power that could be loosed from your life and mine if we were but willing... inexhaustible power... mountains of power that could penetrate a wicked world and turn it Godward. Jesus said, "All power is given unto me." Then why not make contact with God this very day — the source of real power. He said, "Lo, I am with you alway." Attend church and give Him a chance to help rewind the mainspring of your life. Link it up with the billion-volt-dynamo in the Power Room of The Most High.
